

Re: A new definition of natural numbers

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.math/2006-11/msg01543.html>

- From: Virgil <virgil@xxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Mon, 06 Nov 2006 01:31:49 -0700
-

In article <454EE10F.7070506@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>, Eckard Blumschein <blumschein@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote:

On 11/3/2006 2:25 PM, Tonico wrote:

Either it is april, or the above poor guy is a student of Mueck, HdB, Georgie or any other of those cranks and/or trolls that think themselves very smart because they're unable to understand set theory....sigh....oh well.

Perhaps Archimedes was the first one who gave a still unrivalled compelling description of natural numbers.

Not by modern standards.

.