

Re: JSH: Sabotage!

Source: <http://sci.tech--archive.net/Archive/sci.math/2006-11/msg06548.html>

- From: mrdarrett@xxxxxxxxx
 - Date: 25 Nov 2006 19:18:07 -0800
-

Proginoskes wrote:

Tim Peters wrote:

On JSH's ExtremeMathematics Google Group, this showed up today:

Subject: Sabotage!
From: jstevh@xxxxxxxx
Date: Fri, Nov 24 2006 4:23 pm

A member of the sci.math newsgroup managed to get past my screening and join the group, revealing himself when he systematically down rated all of my posts.

I have banned that person from the group.

It shows you how these people operated.

James Harris

James, this is for you: `/anyone/` can rate the posts there.

Sonofagon, you're right; thanks for the info! I just added to his paranoia. Tee-hee-hee. 8-)

For example, if you look you'll see that your "Sabotage!" post is now rated 5 stars by 1 user. I just did that, and no, I've made (and will make) no attempt to join that group.

Alas, what it really shows is your paranoia in action. Given that your group is now down to 1 member (presumably you), you might want to reconsider your decision to ban someone for no apparent real reason at all.

Re: JSH: Sabotage!

He doesn't seem to realize what the implications are of only having one member (presumably himself).

Then again, let that stand and it will make another "fun story" to add to your legend ;-)

That is a classic. Up there with "when I rotated a parabola, I got a hyperbola".

---- Christopher Heckman

Maybe if he gets a little further along on his reading, he can multiply $\sin(x)$ by e^{-x} and say he's discovered a Bessel function...

Michael

.