

Re: The Origin of Life

Source: <http://sci.tech--archive.net/Archive/sci.math/2007-05/msg00100.html>

- From: Muhammad <mzafrullah@xxxxxxx>
 - Date: 1 May 2007 08:36:22 -0700
-

On May 1, 5:19 am, "Jesse F. Hughes" <j...@xxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote:

Muhammad <mzafrul...@xxxxxxx> writes:

I have questions, both for you and the OP.
For you: Have you already warned off every other poster who has posted off-topic to sci.math? If you have not, then you have no right to object to this one.

Bullshit.

He has the right to complain about any reprehensible behavior he cares to complain about. Indeed, maybe he chose to complain about this post just because he hates seeing discussions of Islam. So what? His complaint is perfectly reasonable and he is under no obligation to complain about every off-topic post.

Of course, he might have chosen to complain about this post for some other reason. There is no reason to suppose that he has a particular dislike for Islam.

--

Jesse F. Hughes

"How lucky we are to be able to hear how miserable Willie Nelson could imagine himself to be." — Ken Tucker on Fresh Air

Thanks for the double talk. There is a really offensive thread going on right now, by the title of "fucking". I note that someone has given the OP a single star, but no one has come out to say that the thread was out of place and downright filthy. On the other hand this crazy person is just inviting people to think, believing perhaps that Mathematicians are thinking people, about the possibility that a book that has so many statements that can be verified as true may well be from God. All I am saying is that if you do not have affinity towards Islam, do not read the stuff. Why make all that fuss about its being out of place or off topic?

Re: The Origin of Life

There is another reason why I Jump in on these occasions. You see in the scriptures there are many stories that tell that just before a community faced the wrath of God there were warners who were ridiculed and persecuted for bringing in the message of God and disturbing the merrymaking. So, my friend I act out of concern for your well being.
Muhammad

.