People lie to gain an advantage when they want something badly enough, lack the morals not to lie, and think they can gain an advantage by lying.

That is why You lie in sci.math.

George W. Bush is an interesting case as let's say for the sake of argument that he lied about "weapons of mass destruction" being in Iraq.

He did not, Iraq could not show where the weapons, all documented at the end of the first war by the UN, went.

<snip surface knowledge>

I pulled he thread and my analysis is that he is not a great student of history, felt as the oldest he could fix things as he felt that his father was disadvantaged by his decisions about Iraq and taxes, and he naively decided to reverse his father's decisions.

Wrong. How old are you ? 18 ?
You should take American Government and American History again.

So he invaded Iraq and cut taxes.

Easy.

Re: JSH: Why do people lie ?

Why would mathematicians lie about math?

Why would JSH lie about math ?

Easy.

It's all about the Easy button like in that commercial.

that is how you proved Serriagoat Fingering, by pressing that Easy Button.

They do it for their advantage. And they can clearly get away with it, to a point.

Now ask yourselves, if there is wholesale lying by the mathematical community about math, how would you know it?

They only lie to you, JSH. Because you are such a dumbass and suck so badly at math, you will accept anything any nimrod will say to you about math, does  $1 = 1$  ? really?

So why wouldn't they?

Prove that they are.

I call the situation a Catch-22, like how if Bush were a great leader
