

Re: Real life, real world

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.math/2007-10/msg06082.html>

- From: "bob" <nospam@xxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Wed, 31 Oct 2007 13:44:26 -0500
-

"JSH" <jstevh@xxxxxxxx> wrote in message
<news:1193797435.637915.185440@xx>

Most people in the developed world get to live in a kind of bubble where they feel security based on what has happened, or not happened, to them before.

So you live in a "Bubble". About the size of your fat head? Balloon-head!

It is a sense of security and expectation that you know what can happen.

Yours therefore must be very, very small, a micro bubble.

But it is only an illusion.

Did someone tell you you look like Pinhead on "Puppet Master"?

<http://www.angelfire.com/pa3/PuppetMaster/pinbck.jpg>

As the people of Hiroshima and Nagasaki learned when many of them were shredded in an instant.

They shredded Pearl Harbor first.

Re: Real life, real world

But without that illusion human beings do not do what they do, get up, go to work, keep making babies and continue because they feel safe.

Is that your life? an illusion ? You don't work, don't make babies, and don't feel safe, do you Pinhead?

Many of you have replied to me and argued with me from your bubble not understanding how this story has to go, and most importantly, how it must end because it is how you are built.

Has your bubble been losing air ?
Is it collapsing in a micro burst?
Is a green goo leaking out of your micro-bubble, Pinhead?

You cannot do anything else but follow your programming.

You follow your hacking, you are not a programmer yet.

Revolutions require luck, persistence, and odd juxtapositions of crucial events.

Revolutions require circular motion, dumbass.

Here I have George W. Bush, global warming, and the reality that for some reason number theory simply stopped over a hundred years ago plus a few little things more, just to make it cleaner.

You are way way out of touch with number theory, go read a book, Dover has them for $10 new paperback. Or try ebay for $3

What puzzles me that I keep writing posts like this one is not questions about what will happen but an unending curiosity about people like you. I know what is going to happen to you. And it amazes me looking at it from this distance that you keep doing what you do, going about your business and even arguing with me, as if you are totally clueless.

Re: Real life, real world

Re: Real life, real world

You are in outter spaced man, put down that joint, you smoke too much of that wacky weed.

So then, are you truly totally clueless or do you just wish to make it a grander tale on some level?

You should not drive stoned on the internet, goof-ball.

Is there not some need to be sacrificed in you? Isn't that why you keep up the resistance, and keep arguing and help set the stage in this way?

You talking to your mommie now? She is tired as shit of talking to you she is the one that called and got them to put a net over you.

You want what is coming next. You must. I just cannot believe you are ignorant any more.

Known Fact: JSH is ignorant of any/ all "Number Theory"

It is too wild already at this point. The drama around the world is too fantastic. And on some level you must know there are few limits to how incredible what is about to happen may be.

Yep. You are a stoner. a Drama Queen, alone with your computer.

And that is about assuaging my guilt. I have no guilt here. I do not make your decisions.

Too bad you make decisions for yourself, no training there.

Re: Real life, real world

Re: Real life, real world

I am not here to save your life from you.

Pinhead, your bubble now has zero volume, therefore your IQ is now Zero.

So then as the countdown begins in earnest and a few months separate us from one more crucial event, and then as only a few years separate us from even more incredible and fantastic events that will decide the fate of life on this planet, I say, yes!

keep licking them china painted toys, and backs of frogs and toads, and stay off the bong, friend.

James Harris