Shortening the spam title

No, Randy, what you're doing is posting unwanted crap that has nothing at all to do with mathematics.

It was already there. I did what I intended to do, which was shorten the space the title of those threads was taking in the display.

Given that I've seen you do this more than once today, I presume you intend to do it systematically.

Twice.

Which would make you little better than a spammer yourself.

You liked the long titles better? I'm not quite sure what your complaint is. Before I posted there were X threads, two of which had huge title lines. After I posted, there were X threads, but no longer those two subject lines. In what way did that cause a problem for you?

IIRC Phil has the whole of Google Groups killfiled, except for certain authors, one of whom is you. So your reply to the spam posting will have been the first time he saw it.

Similarly, I have filters in place which filtered out the original message (so I never saw it), but not the renamed message.
