

Re: Local Homeomorphisms

---

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.math/2008-04/msg04016.html>

---

- From: William Elliot <marsh@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
  - Date: Mon, 21 Apr 2008 21:51:07 -0700
-

On Mon, 21 Apr 2008, Marc Olschok wrote:

William Elliot <marsh@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote:

On Sun, 20 Apr 2008, Marc Olschok wrote:

William Elliot <marsh@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote:

On Sun, 20 Apr 2008, Jannick Asmus wrote:
[...]

Google should become your friend.

They were until they sold their soul to the stock market.

Ever since then I've been removing bookmarks to Google's services. They are examples of 'new and improved' = 'isn't as nice and doesn't work as good' and 'updates are worse than blind dates'.

Now Yahoo is my friend. Yahoo should become your friend.

So you prefer friends who collaborate in internet censorship and sell out dissidents to oppressive governments?

Now that you mention it, that's another reason why
Yahoo is my friend

Re: Local Homeomorphisms

who is unlike Google that does such things.

Sure about the "unlike" ?

You might want to take a look at <http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Yahoo!> .

An interesting "unlike" from that article is

| Unlike Google or Microsoft, which keep confidential records of its | users outside mainland China, Yahoo stated that the company will
| not protect the privacy and confidentiality of its Chinese customers
| from the authorities.

What's the difference if you're Chinese?

Who does data mining for the US government?

.