

showing a function bounded away from zero

---

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.math/2008-05/msg00628.html>

---

- From: novis <standshik@xxxxxxxxxx>
  - Date: Sun, 4 May 2008 14:31:03 -0700 (PDT)
-

what is the general procedure to show that a function bounded away from zero in a small(that can be chosen suitably) interval around origin?

suppose my function is for some constant  $c > 0$ $f(x) = \exp(ix)$  where  $i$  is complex number.

.