I fail to see how that is my logic. Lions don't kill each other for food, do they? How about chickens? They kill all kinds of insects, but they don't kill each other for food.

One thing I've noticed about aggressive vegetarians(as opposed to vegetarians who quietly do their thing) is that they also have an extreme tendency to violence against people. That is one of the main reasons I make counterpoints. For example, Jay Maharaj, who claims to be a "pure vegetarian" is also obsessed with killing Muslims and Christians, not so much for their dietary habits, but for their religious leanings.

So you're a killer by nature, then? I'm willing to bet you've killed all kinds of animals by the choices you make in your daily life. And if you're not forcing anything on me, why are you people being so aggressive about denying me my choice of food and/or clothing?

ratio, it is in India that the males dominate the chart. Worse still is when we take a look at the child sex ratio, between the age group of zero to six. For the nation, the child sex ratio is 927. But the figures drop significantly when we see the community report card: 950 for Muslims, 925 for Hindus, and a shocking 786 for the Sikhs. Call it shocking or dismal, but the fact remains that the growing female foeticide and getting rid of the girl child before she reaches the age of six, is a dastardly crime.

Here is the modern India for you, fast heading towards a daughter-less nation. In an era of new economy based on knowledge-based systems and in a fast-track mode, the Hindu rate of growth has also acquired a new dimension. Here is the new Hindu rate of growth for you, linked to rising literacy - the higher the economic growth the more is the mass slaughter of the girl child.
