

Re: Splitting Crestor

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.med.cardiology/2005-02/0433.html>

From: William Wagner (No1SpamStill__B2wagner_at_snip.net)

Date: 02/10/05

Date: Thu, 10 Feb 2005 13:10:33 -0500

In article <ee2dnWVh09Msa5ffRVn-iQ@comcast.com>, "Sharon Hope" <shope@anet.net> wrote:

I can't remember where , but wasn't there a post here essentially > > stating that there was no difference between Lipitor 10 MG and a > > placebo?
> >
> > Was of import to me but I lost the info anyway. 10 vs. 20 MG seems > > small to a guy that went from 80 to 40 and is shooting for 20. If you > > get my drift. I break 80 into 40. Then again I'm at risk.
> >
> > DrugsYuk
>
> If there was such a post it was wrong. 10 mg is strong.
>
> It was strong enough to disable my husband for much of the 4 years of taking > it, and for 3 years and counting thereafter.
>
I guess I read this differently... if 10 MG and a placebo yield no difference for what it was designed for why take it?

A 49 guy who thinks folks should know about 48 and hope they don't become 49 folks.

Bill

--

Zone 5 S Jersey USA Shade

--> <http://www.ocutech.com/> For vision problems

<http://www.truemajorityaction.org/site/pp.asp?c=jvLUJdP8H&b=315914&msource=ustack>