

Re: Why Post to SMC ?

---

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.med.cardiology/2006-06/msg00268.html>

---

- From: William Wagner <~~not-to-here-williamwag@xxxxxxxxxx~~>
  - Date: Tue, 13 Jun 2006 12:44:30 -0400
-

In article <4f87ajF1hlcc4U2@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>, Susan <nevermind@xxxxxxxxxx> wrote:

x-no-archive: yes

William Wagner wrote:

Seems a small amount of posters with fervent belief systems intact rule the info space. Can these folks overwhelm many with real issues of heart health care ?

Many of us have health issues first hand or loved ones do. Some of us studied much and try impart knowledge. Some of us try to sell ideas or goods a separation harder to discern in health care these days.

Some may have to undergo this to perhaps find a useful nugget of wisdom which I believe is about. Not easy yet ask a real heart question and then ask if it was the best practice and ask again.

If you use kill files, you don't see the offending posts.

And you may find one from a newbie who needs information and support.

That's why, thinks moi.

Susan

A lot of folks come here via Goggle which does not offer filtering options. They end up with cross posted pap.

Bill who has a filter that also points out interesting folks.

—

S Jersey USA Zone 5 Shade

This article is posted under fair use rules in accordance with Title 17 U.S.C. Section 107, and is strictly for the educational and informative purposes. This material is distributed without profit.

.