

Re: Researchers discover how a high-fat diet causes type 2 diabetes

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.med.cardiology/2006-09/msg00261.html>

- From: "Juhana Harju" <spamshantigiriorama.removespam@xxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Tue, 19 Sep 2006 17:47:42 +0300
-

William Wagner wrote:

: In article <450ff3ba$0$24652$1c4686b2@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>,
: coonskin@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxx wrote:

:
:: For sometime diabetes has been described as a disorder of fat
:: metabolism. This affects beta cells and leads in time to high
:: glucose levels for those with the genetic disposition. What we
:: consider as classic symptoms of diabetes are several steps down the
:: chain of causes. Using large population studies high intake of
:: saturated fats is related to the risk of diabetes and the metabolic
:: syndrome with the level of insulin resistance being a common theme.
:: This study looks at this origin of the fat handling disorder:

::
:: <http://www.NewsTarget.com/020449.html>

:
: I'm so confused!

:
: Bill

This might clarify the issue a bit.

<http://www.juvenon.com/jhj/vol5no01.htm>

—
Juhana

.