When I go into my account my nickname is shown but when I post something my husband's nickname shows up. Does anyone know how to fix this?

oh! You're posting through Googlegroups??? I hadn't noticed that before. My suggestion would be switch to a proper newsreader like Outlook or Netscape or ... my favorite ... Agent. I don't see how one can negotiate an active usenet group with anything less, although I know that's not your immediate problem.
Anyhow.... just a suggestion.
I can't help with the web based stuff.

Port

Web based stuff have the advantage of useability across multiple platforms, OSes, and workstations. Then there is the smokescreen of bogus IP addresses that web based stuff sometimes put out that really confuse the would-be cyberstalkers that hang out here.

The use of a "proper newsreader" would tie someone down to the PC/Mac where Agent is installed with those personal settings concerning subscribed groups, handle, email address, password, etc. This would not be good for someone being cyberstalked.

May GOD bless you in HIS mighty way (you will be hungrier when HE does).

Prayerfully in Jesus' awesome love,
