

Re: hospitalizing a small child for abscesses?

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.med.dentistry/2004-07/1066.html>

---

From: Joel M. Eichen, D.D.S. (joeleichen\_at\_yahoo.com)

Date: 07/09/04

Date: Fri, 09 Jul 2004 06:25:23 -0400

On Wed, 9 Jun 2004 06:31:38 -0400, "Paul" <pf3511@yahoo.com> wrote:

>It would deviate from standard-of-care not to put him in the hospital. That >is the safest thing to do. Personally, I think conscious sedation is a >crock. "All this by taking a little pill."

There is p.o. conscious sedation as described and i.v. conscious sedation. The latter works quite well!

JOEL

> Now there's a group trying to >get their voodoo dentistry accepted as standard-of-care.

>From Haiti you mean?

> There's much more >of a risk of a complication, such as aspiration, sudden head movement under >conscious sedation. Isn't that an oxymoron?

>

>

>

>"Joel M. Eichen, D.D.S." <joeleichen@yahoo.com> wrote in message >news:s30dc0hhuko4r96e2h6n9a40ntjq4cjuq3@4ax.com...

>> On Wed, 9 Jun 2004 00:31:21 -0400, "Paul" <pf3511@yahoo.com> wrote:

>>

>> >I don't understand what the problem is here. It's a no brainer to put >him

>> >in the hospital.

>> >

>>

>> Safety.

>>

>> Joel

>>

>>

>> >

>> >

sci.med.dentistry: Re: hospitalizing a small child for abscesses?

>> ><lksjff@jldajf.cojf> wrote in message
>> >news:958cc05nchdnfk0ig429nl9qs08vl48m8h@4ax.com...
>> >> On Tue, 8 Jun 2004 19:28:52 -0700, in sci.med.dentistry "Rich"
>> >> <sooperdooper_pooperscooper_@cox.net> wrote:
>> >>
>> >> :Joel, what about for a 3yo boy who has a heart defect? like a VSD and
>> >> :bicuspid valve, and some other problems. The pedodontist wants him >> >> admitted
>> >> :in the hospital first, and its going to be done in the or under >> >> general
>> >> :anesthetics. He's having nearly every primary tooth capped, and two >> >> pulled.
>> >> :He has enamel hypoplasia and two teeth are so bad they are broken off.
>> >>
>> >>
>> >> Why not wait til the baby teeth grow in? Poor kid has been through >> >> enough I >> >> would think..
>> >>
>> >> Congenital Heart Disease Webring:
>> >> <http://www.schizoaffective.org/chd/index.htm>
>> >
>>
>