Fact: In early June 1999 Jan Drew say she was bedridden and was close to death

Fact: One June 18, 1999 after having some amalgams removed over the past two days Jan stated that she felt better than she had in two years and looked forward to having the rest of the mercury out.

Fact: On June 26, 1999, only a week after having 8 amalgams out Jan Drew said that the removal of the amalgams made a difference, that she was no longer receiving a daily dose of mercury and was able to go out line dancing with no foot pain.

Fact: Jan Drew admitted that the mercury level rises after having amalgams removed.

Fact: Jan Drew lied when she said that she almost died of mercury poisoning.

If Jan Drew was that close to death from mercury poisoning, a week after removing eight amalgams Jan Drew's condition should have been WORSE. But she reports that not only was she no longer bedridden but that she had no foot pain and was able to go out line dancing. Of course the pain soon returned since placebo responses are short lived.

Jan Drew knows that what I have said above is true. She is a psychopath and will continue to lie about nearly dying from mercury poisoning. She lied when she said that the reason she KNOWS it was the mercury was because she did not BEGIN to regain her health until AFTER her mercury level dropped. Not only did she begin to regain her health before her mercury level dropped but she began to regain her health when her mercury level was likely the highest in her life. And Jan Drew knows it.

So Jan admits that the removal of amalgams put MORE mercury in her body. And yet not only did she immediately feel better than she had in two years BEFORE all the dental work was done, but a week later when the mercury was likely the highest in her life, she went from being bedridden to going out line dancing.

PS: Jan will not be able to refute ANY of the above. But she will respond by making an extraneous personal attack against me. Just watch.
