

sci.med.dentistry: Re: Proposal to the dentists of the board: Let's stop arguing for amalgam.

Re: Proposal to the dentists of the board: Let's stop arguing for amalgam.

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.med.dentistry/2005-03/0055.html>

clintonz_at_prodigy.net

Date: 02/28/05

Date: 28 Feb 2005 07:03:07 -0800

Joel M. Eichen wrote:

> On 28 Feb 2005 06:26:09 -0800, clintonz@prodigy.net wrote:

>

>>

>>> Joel M. Eichen wrote:

>>> On 27 Feb 2005 19:36:39 -0800, leaderdmd@juno.com wrote:

>>>

>>> >I still don't know how practicing dentists feel about my suggestion

>>> >(Joel is retired which is why he has so much time on his hands to >>> >make >>> >so many replies. Joel, you should get out more. If you are in the >>> >Boston area call me and I'll take you mountain biking or cross >>> >country

>>> >skiing in season.)

>>>

>>> >I have a couple of stop-watches and I may start keeping a running >>> >total of the number of minutes I spend online. It is not that much >>> >at >>> >all.

>>>

>>> >I can type fast too 50-70 wpm. How many LPM (Lies per minute) can you >>> >type?

>>>

>>> >Sadly I do it like newspaper reporters with two fingers ,, but pretty >>> >fast with two fingers though.

>>>

>>> >The disadvantage is that I must watch the keys.

>>>

>>>

>>> >But it works.y

sci.med.dentistry: Re: Proposal to the dentists of the board: Let's stop arguing for amalgam.

You have to learn to touch type. You will easily quadruple your posting speed and number. You can also think while you type, because you don't have to look at the keyboard. I don't even know where the letters on the keyboard are, but I can still type out the words. It becomes a reflex, It is weird!! I think

On yahoo games there is a program called typershark which you can use to increase your speed. It is slow going at first, but after about a month or two of practice you will be up to 3-40 wpm. When you type on the internet your speed will increase quickly because in essence you will be continuously practicing. I'll look forward to seeing the increased # of postings soon!

Be careful of one thing though. When you touch type you are more likely to type what you are thinking instead of what you mean (freudian slip) so read everything twice before you post it.