

Newbie question about denplan

Source: <http://sci.tech--archive.net/Archive/sci.med.dentistry/2005-10/msg00568.html>

- From: "john Smith" <j.l@xxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Wed, 12 Oct 2005 18:18:46 GMT
-

Dear Board,

I'm sorry if I am posting this in the wrong group. If I am please accept my apologies and kindly point me in the right direction.

My NHS dentist has recently gone private and has told me to go on the Denplan scheme at a cost of £13.50 a month.

I am dubious about asking the dentist/receptionist advice as at the moment I am seeing them as no more than glorified sales people !!!!!

My questions are is there a minimum contract I will be locked into?

How soon before I can start claiming on the "insurance"?

Is there a maximum claim I can make?

The reasons I am asking this is that I have got 5 metal fillings that I have had since I was a child and they must need replacing by now.

Is there anything stopping me going in after I have paid my 1st months subscription (or even the 2nd, so I do not make it look obvious) saying that each of the fillings hurt, and then getting them all replaced with white ones. One this has been done then just cancelling my policy?

Thanks in advance, and again I apologise if I am in the wrong group

.

- Follow-Ups:
 - ◆ Re: Newbie question about denplan
◇ From: Ann

Newbie question about denplan

- Prev by Date: Re: apicoectomy
- Next by Date: Re: \$1400 for 14 year old's 5 fillings ?
- Previous by thread: Re: OT completely
- Next by thread: Re: Newbie question about denplan
- Index(es):
 - ◆ Date
 - ◆ Thread