Jan,

Perhaps people would react more kindly to your plight if you demonstrated more credibility in your demeanor and in the content of your posts. You can list articles until you are blue in the face but these are meaningless unless you can demonstrate that you have an understanding of what you are reading.

I think you may be doing harm to vulnerable people by acting as though you know as much or more than a medical professional.

BTW, I am glad that Chuck does not have diabetes. I am not sure why he is so interested in discussing diabetes with dentists and bashing dentists on that subject.

Good luck to the both of you in your quest to inform the uninformed. I truly do feel sorry for you and others who have physical problems that are so bad that you would prefer to die rather than to live.

But the sad truth is, you are right. I am not very interested in hearing what you have to say anymore. You do not sound credible. Mostly you: bash others, scream out about how stupid the medical and dental professions are, claim people are stalking you, and call people liars. To put it bluntly, you sound and act insane Jan. It is difficult to take you seriously.

And you wrote:

"There is NO such thing as Diabetic Peripheral Neuropathy"

You are clueless. In your own post the first stated cause of peripheral neuropathy is diabetes.

In addition, you are arrogant. You think you know more than the Mayo Clinic and the entire research profession because you have been studying peripheral neuropathy for years. B.S. You have a closed mind and look only at the research that fits your predetermined conclusions.

Re: Wake Up Call For Sue

I do not doubt that mercury poisoning exists (in a small minority of the population). Yet Jan, you do not have the credentials to make diagnoses for others who are ill from undetermined causes.

I have to be honest with you. I AM concerned about those who suffer from unexplained illnesses. Many are desperate for answers and will believe any crack-pot that comes along. You seem confident that you, a self-proclaimed victim of Hg poisoning (it appears) have all of the answers for these people.

THAT is what I find scary and disturbing.

You wrote.

"Go back to sleep, Sue, and do not give another thought to anyone who might be poisoned, I wouldn't want to disturb your comfortable world."

OK then. You have thoroughly convinced me. This is a great ex. of how to shut off communications and turn people completely OFF to your intended messages Jan.

I sincerely hope that you end up saving more people (as you say) than causing harm to those who are vulnerable and hurting.

Now I prefer to take your advice Jan, and ignore you from now on. And please do not address me in any of your future posts either.

Thank you,
-Sue
