So then, answer my questions regarding why you take such a strong stance against endo yet your web site and published article don't provide cases that support your views or provide good evidence of the evils of endodontic care. Since you are following these threads, you probably recall my comments. I am presently reading your book, looking for those examples, but may not have gotten there yet.

You keep hearkening back to the fact you have been attacked and insulted here, yet you conveniently forget who started the branding of people as idiots and incompetents.

I am also curious why your book takes so much time and space describing how ignorant and uninformed other dentists are. Why not just present your message and let that do the talking? Your posts here have taken the same approach and as you correctly point out, have led to nothing but a trading of insults. I'd really like to learn more about your views.

One last question. Why have you always used one path lab...the same one used by others who share your views? It would seem that the types of pathology you write about would be easily noted by any pathologist, so the use of a single lab seems unusual.
