He actually was finally divorced by the time this happened. But I'd worked with him earlier while he was getting divorced and for years he had the worst breath of anyone I have ever met. I think he had terrible dental hygiene and possibly some other problems -- his breath was always bad. You really couldn't stand to be within feet of him, as opposed to someone that you can't stand close to because of bad breath.

About 6 or 8 years later we ran into him somewhere and shockingly he didn't have bad breath, so something had been taken care of by then.
