He said at one point he needed a narrow <something> tool because there was little to grip in order to extract the pieces (which were still very painful when pulled upwards), but didn't have one.

Tools are generally a good idea when trying to do dentistry...

Thanks for that. A real help. I'm sure you'll get similar help one day and think of this.

OK, what I was trying to say was: he strikes me as incompetent (without mentioning the word incompetent).
