

Re: Root Canal is not the worst thing there is

Re: Root Canal is not the worst thing there is

---

Source: <http://sci.tech--archive.net/Archive/sci.med.dentistry/2006-11/msg00253.html>

---

- From: "NOYB" <noyb@xxxxxxx>
  - Date: Thu, 23 Nov 2006 02:05:59 GMT
-

"Jan" <jdrew63929@xxxxxxx> wrote in message
<news:1163265012.225707.24330@xx>

Peter Bowditch wrote:

"Jan" <jdrew63929@xxxxxxx> wrote:

George wrote:

Too late Jan! She already had the root canal done!

Yes, I know. This is posted as a future reference and for other readers.

Who will hopefully ignore it and continue to get appropriate treatment for their dental problems.

--

Peter Bowditch

Never mind Peter, he follows me with his stalking.

Root Canals. A tooth has miles of tiny canals running through the root.

A dead or root filled tooth will have bacteria in these canals. There is no way of removing the bacteria once they are in there.

Sure there is. A good soaking of sodium hypochlorite.

And if your body's immune system isn't strong enough to defend against

Re: Root Canal is not the worst thing there is

Re: Root Canal is not the worst thing there is whatever miniscule amount of bacteria that may or may not remain after the NaOCl soaking, then you've got other problems to worry about besides your teeth.

But don't let my educated dental opinion get in the way of your silly hysteria. Carry on.