

Re: Ph Balancing (steph)

Source: <http://sci.tech--archive.net/Archive/sci.med.diseases.cancer/2006-07/msg00041.html>

- From: down@xxxxxxxxxxxxx (madiba)
 - Date: Tue, 11 Jul 2006 15:22:19 +0200
-

J <macyinno@xxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote:

madiba wrote:

Peter Moran <pmoran@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote:

"J W" <jonboy42@xxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message

Bottom line if someone comes here with a thought or idea let the majority decide if it is something that they are willing to try or not and keep your thoughts to yourself unless you have physically tried them. History is riddled with dumb sounding ideas that went on to become very useful ideas because intelligent people encourage free thinking and new ideas. Ignorant people oppose anything that isn't tried and true tested, even if it has been proven to be extremely costly and shown only limited success. In otherwords if you aint got something good to say, don't speak because people who are very ill with this disease do not need negativity.

Its very simple. If you have an idea about an alternative method of treating cancer put it in an alt.cancer newsgroup. If and when your idea works verifiably, put it in this NG.

Re: Ph Balancing (steph)

No thanks, he'll get the same answers, from me, Steph and many others.
J

You might, but I doubt whether Steph would have problems with a therapy thats been shown by reliable sources to work.. :-/

—

madiba

.