No, to be honest what happened is that I was being eaten alive from allot of bacteria including Lyme and Strep. I read about silver and quickly said to myself what a load of bullshit. An IV line was pulled which went directly to my heart. It started to have a nasty little infection at that site. That's when I found a CURAD band aid with silver in it. If you read the band aid it state it kills all types of bacteria. This is CURAD! They cannot say this with out getting sued big time. Long story short it worked. That's when I read up more about it and started taking it internally. Here's the problem. It's tough to get into your system. Drinking it, your body eliminates it quit easily so as I said before I do it thru my sinuses and I use traditional antibiotics (clindamycin is good for strep) to attack it on a different levels. I do not profit from it but I am completely floored by it. Frankly anyone saying it doesn't work is just not very literate and is going against regular medicine. If you get a burn or need a catheter your going to want silver. there are 87 medical FDA APPROVED uses for it.
