Who said anyone is doing a media RICO conspiracy to get me, "because they got burned?"

Are you talking about me?

Your husband is a RICO lawyer and he married you?

Hmmm. Sorry, I'm autistic and require stuff to be logical. Have you forgotten our conversations about why Lyme is RICO and not a controversy?

If you will recall, your questions were very pointed. You said you consulted with your husband and brought forth the Weisman/Derdrithemann arguments that these were matters of scientific opinion, and that the misinterpretation of the Lyme testing was the docs' fault.

And I explained that scientific validity is very explicit.

And that CDC says Dearborn was valid,

Re: 58 common indicators of UFO encounters or abductions by alien beings while Wormser says it isn't, and Molloy agrees.

The ELISA is much less sensitive than the Western Blot, contrary to what we are told.

Dearborn was constructed to rule out 80% or more of Lyme on the first step– the ELISA.

Then you said my posts were off topic, when you have no idea the history of this group, nor our investigations, and especially you have no idea what a system is, or any knowledge of physics.

We get from you, fluff and nonsense, and the truth is, if you really wanted to know anything about Lyme, you would have Mr. RICOhusband, Esquire, do the research for you.

Is he aware that you are posting this nonsense to the internet? Do you so obstruct conversations at home?

Normally, a Lyme patient has sympathy for other Lyme patients. I see not one iota of evidence that you have any interest in our well-being. That much is the only evidence that there is a lawyer in your family.

I take it you never read any of the links I posted. This kind of crap is typical of pinheads with opinions. I happen to know a lot of them. They share a very clear and common set of characteristics.

You haven't yet added anything to this newsgroup. Are you from Connecticut?
