He is not a newsgroup leader. He is Ed McSweegan, a hateful extreme right-wing bureaucrat from the NIH with a background in offensive bioweapons who has been responsible for mass suffering of Lyme patients for years.

This group is unmoderated as set up by the original charter. The founder of the group is no longer identifiable as active on the group. It was founded in July or Aug., 1995 by Linda Palund (monke...@xxxxxxxxxxxxxx) of
"Monkey Paw Productions".

Below is one of the earliest emails with the charter application information. I reposted this post with the charter information about sci.med.diseases.lyme in 1998 when I was more active on the group. I also remember emailing Linda years ago. I wouldn't know if the email address is still valid, but you could try to do a google search with her name and/or email address.

Here is the original post about the proposed charter for news:sci.med.diseases.lyme:

From: Linda Palund <monke...@xxxxxxxxxxxx>
Subject: 2nd RFD: sci.med.diseases.lyme
Date: 1995/05/23
Message-ID: <3ptdao$psk@xxxxxxxxxxxx>

REQUEST FOR DISCUSSION (RFD)
unmoderated group sci.med.diseases.lyme changed proposal from unmoderated group misc.health.lyme-disease

Newsgroups line:
sci.med.diseases.lyme Lyme Disease and related issues.

This is a formal Request For Discussion concerning the creation of an unmoderated newsgroup to be called sci.med.diseases.lyme.

This is the same group that was recently proposed under the title of misc.health.lyme-disease. After a long discussion period it was decided by consensus that the misc.health category was not the best choice for a Lyme Disease discussion group for the following reasons: Many of the respondents were unable to access the misc category at their sites. In addition, the consensus felt that the sci.med category would better serve their desires to have a serious as well as informative and accessible forum for discussion and would encourage the participation of the medical and scientific community. Therefore we are posting the RFD again under the new name of sci.med.diseases.lyme.

The first paragraph of the Charter has been amended to include anyone who has an interest in educating themselves about the symptoms, treatment, and prevention of Lyme Disease. The second paragraph of the Charter has

changed to reflect the wishes of the consensus to encourage participation by the medical and scientific community. Other changes that have been made are inessential corrections in wording to clarify the language of the RFD.

This RFD is being posted in accordance with the Guidelines for Newsgroup
Creation. Its language is based on previously submitted RFDs. Its format follows a suggestion by David C. Lawrence, the moderator of news.announce.newgroups.

RATIONALE:

There is currently no discussion group for the many persons suffering from Lyme Disease, a devastating illness which has become a problem from North America to Slovakia or wherever the disease carrying tick thrives. The symptoms are as varied as the terrain and patients are often left isolated
by these debilitating symptoms in quite rural locations.

Although there are Lyme Disease support groups in various geographic locations, the severe limitations of the varied symptoms experienced by patients make it often impossible for them to physically attend these groups. This proposed newsgroup would give housebound patients a much needed forum to discuss their problems, symptoms, fears and victories.
Lyme
Disease is particularly common among teenagers and young children because their activities often take them into areas where the tick is found.
Fortunately, many of these young people have access to a computer, usually through their school. Both young patients and adult sufferers may never actually meet another Lyme Disease patient face to face, and being able to communicate via a Lyme Disease newsgroup could be invaluable help in easing
their fears and giving them the support they need.

MAILING LISTS:

There currently exists a Lyme Disease Mailing List, LymeNet, which publishes an informational newsletter to its 1200 direct subscribers, as well as being gated to the sci.med newsgroup. In addition, I am aware that many people copy the LymeNet Newsletter and redistribute it as per the reprint agreement.

LymeNet is useful for the dissemination of new information about Lyme Disease as it is made available and will definitely be useful as a resource for the proposed discussion group, however it is not able to offer the give and take that an open discussion group can offer and the publishers of LymeNet have no plans to make such a discussion group available to all sites. We are planning to gateway the LymeNet Mailing List to sci.med.diseases.lyme.

CHARTER:

The proposed newsgroup is intended for discussion about the many different aspects of Lyme Disease as experienced by patients, their caregivers, friends and family members, doctors and other medical professionals, or anyone affected by or involved with Lyme Disease, as well as those who wish to learn about its symptoms, latest treatment options and its prevention.

Anyone with an interest in Lyme Disease is free to post, including the medical and scientific community, as this newsgroup is interested both in fostering communication between Lyme Disease sufferers from all parts of the globe, as well as providing an open forum for the exchange of medical and scientific information which can be useful to all participants. Above all, we wish to encourage a supportive and open atmosphere for the free exchange of opinions and information.

Old Post: Sci.med.diseases.lyme ADMINISTRATOR

The following are examples of possible posting topics:

- questions regarding any aspect of Lyme Disease
- symptoms and problems arising from the onset of new symptoms
- treatments and therapies, both conventional and alternative
- emotions, including fears and anxieties caused by this illness

- social issues regarding this illness
- problems in the medical community in regard to Lyme Disease
- new information and resources available about the disease
- related practical problems or solutions
- Lyme Disease research findings

Commercial advertisements may NOT be posted to this proposed group.

PROCEDURE:

If there are no overwhelming objections to the proposed group, there will be a Call For Votes (CFV) posted to the same groups as this RFD. The voting period will be at least 21 days. If the group passes by receiving a 2/3rds majority of YES votes to all valid YES & NO votes as well as 100 more YES votes than NO votes, it will be created.

DISTRIBUTION:

This RFD is being posted to the following relevant newsgroups:

news.announce.newgroups, news.groups
alt.med.fibromyalgia
alt.support.arthritis, misc.health.arthritis
sci.med, sci.med.immunology

Subsequent discussion should take place in news.groups only, not in other above-mentioned groups. The Followup-To: header is set accordingly.

This group was a train wreck until I rescued it. In fact I voted against it in 1995 before it became a group July 4th 1995. I had a feeling it would turn into a platform for insurance fraud and witch doctors trying to sell
"miracle"
treatments for lyme.

Thank God I rescued it.

Oh really? Now gee that's funny. Because I have the list of those who voted.
And NOWHERE on it is there mentioned a "Chuck P Adams".
There is however, a Dr. Edward McSweegan who was not too happy about a
Lyme
newsgroup being formed (might allow Lyme patients some access to TRUE
INFO,
huh?)

Of course, it could have just been a typing error. I mean "Chuck P Adams" looks
just like "Ed McSweegan" when you type, doesn't it?

>I had a feeling it would turn into >a platform for insurance fraud

You mean you dreaded it might become a forum for EXPOSING the insurance fraud conducted by Kaiser Permanente and the others in partnership with the ALDF and all your other crooked friends.

Somebody voted you "Leader"? Sure. But not of this newsgroup. The RICO leader,
maybe. Leader of the pack.
