

Re: Do abusive mothers infect their children with Lyme?

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.med.diseases.lyme/2005-12/msg00284.html>

- From: "rebecca" <mockingbirdstl@xxxxxxx>
 - Date: 2 Dec 2005 11:20:42 -0800
-

children are more prone to being infected because they have a tendency to play outside and stray into tick infested areas...also, they have less awareness of the dangers of ticks, and may not spend time to check themselves. the nymphs are hard enough to spot for an adult who knows what to look for.

the phenomenon you describe, munchausen's syndrome by proxy, is historically a very rare disorder.

.

- Follow-Ups:
 - ◆ Re: Do abusive mothers infect their children with Lyme?
 - ◇ From: dali
- References:
 - ◆ Do abusive mothers infect their children with Lyme?
 - ◇ From: CaliforniaLyme
- Prev by Date: Re: Dr Jones IS a living SAINT!!!!
- Next by Date: Shall I say who is the imposter? Vote yes or no
- Previous by thread: Do abusive mothers infect their children with Lyme?
- Next by thread: Re: Do abusive mothers infect their children with Lyme?
- Index(es):
 - ◆ Date
 - ◆ Thread