But the Super Bowl is just an over-hyped freakshow in my opinion. I didn't really care if they won or not, as I said here in this exchange with Chuckles the Clown on the 22nd of January...

then perhaps it is not always. The football talked is about as boring as the game.

For two weeks solid around here the media talked about nothing else. Stories about what the Bears players had for lunch led the local news in front of the usual assorted homicides and disasters or sluts getting out of limos sans panties. It gets to be extreme overkill...and I was at the point where I just wanted them to play the f---king game and get it over with.

It's basically for the amusement of the plebians...as it always has been. The empire provides good games for the amusement of the populi...so they don't get overly concerned about the fact that a dragon has swallowed the sun and isn't going to spit it back out until April.

Yep pretty stupid to bet against manning but I cant stand the guy. Crying about play calling all the time. PUTZ. and dawd that D-line sucked. Burlacher is the only guy who sucked it up. Oh well let emotion take over reasoning and you deserve to get beat.-

Huh?

It's a game of emotion, Brent...even at the pro level.

Urlacher...gets a lot more attention than he probably deserves because he is a reasonably skilled athlete (white) in a game increasingly dominated by African–American athletes.

He has trouble shedding blockers.
