

'Twinkle after-effect' can help retinal patients detect vision loss quickly and cheaply

'Twinkle after-effect' can help retinal patients detect vision loss quickly and cheaply

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.med.diseases.lyme/2007-10/msg00524.html>

- From: ashok.kumar.kgp@xxxxxxxxxx
 - Date: Sat, 27 Oct 2007 02:48:29 -0700
-

Scientists at Schepens Eye Research Institute, an affiliate of Harvard Medical School, have discovered a simple and inexpensive way for patients with retinal and other eye disease to keep track of changes in their vision loss.

<http://theanalystmagazine.com/pr/401089.htm>