

Re: Doctor damaged my urethra – please help!

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.med.prostate.prostatitis/2004-06/0040.html>

From: carlo italy (charlie.franzi_at_tin.it)

Date: 06/12/04

Date: 12 Jun 2004 13:48:11 -0700

johnaclark1@hotmail.com (John A Clark) wrote in message news:<ba16500d.0406120612.52482938@posting.google.com>...

> Hi,
> I believe a doctor damaged my urethra unnecessarily. I have given > things several months to heal themselves but they haven't so I am > really concerned. I understand that certain urethral injuries can be > very difficult to repair and that they often require multiple > surgeries. This really worries me. I don't wish to get into > specifics here but I need some good advice. I am not money hungry or > lawsuit-happy and would much rather this problem go away than seek any > kind of compensation. However, I am finding it hard to find a > urologist who will actually focus on the issue and not brush off my > concerns. I need someone to take a look at my urethra without an > invasive procedure like a cystoscopy because I fear this will cause > further damage. I'd like to do this before my current problems result > in bigger ones but the people I have spoken to seem anxious to do > something which I feel would damage me further. Considering the > impact this situation has had on my life since it happened along with > the fact that things aren't getting any better on their own and that I > am very nervous about how this will effect me in the future, I need to > know the right way to handle this situation ASAP. I feel that I > should contact a lawyer at this point but I have no idea where to > start. Is this the right procedure? If so, how do I go about finding > the best lawyer?
> Please reply to me by email at johnaclark1@hotmail.com.
> Thank you very much for your help.

I'm a lawyer but i am italian and i have problems like you.

If you do not need money now try to find the way to solve your problem before and then you can think about a lawsuit.