

Re: Click, click

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.med.transcription/2004-06/1702.html>

From: JulieW8 (seemysig_at_netscape.net)

Date: 06/25/04

Date: Fri, 25 Jun 2004 03:00:01 GMT

I've been running XP Professional for 2+ years now and I do this all the time without any problem. I put the mouse over the folder and right click and I also right click to close or minimize programs from the task bar.

On Thu, 24 Jun 2004 16:22:05 -0500, CyberCafe <pkbk@badger.tds.net> wrote:

>Some of you folks already know this, but for those who don't maybe this >information will help prevent you from pulling your hair out.
>
>Recently we had a problem with explorer.exe (not Internet Explorer) >using up the system resources in Windows XP. I had MemoKit installed, >which probably prevented the computer from crashing, but the bad thing >is MemoKit also hid the problem for quite a long time. Eventually found >out that if you are in Windows Explorer, you should not right click on a >file to perform a task; you have to do a left click first to select the >file and then a right click on the same file. My encryption tool is in >Windows Explorer (PGP) and I was eliminating the left click selection >and going directly to a right click to bring up the box with the >encryption link. Bad idea, but I didn't know. Microsoft has a >workaround, but it didn't work on my computer.
>
>Unfortunately, the system restore points were turned off at some point >for a virus scan, so I don't have a restore point to go back to. At >some point the problem fixed itself for a while but then returned.
>
>The only way to temporarily solve this problem is to use Start>run and >then type in explorer.exe and it will start a fresh copy of explorer >that doesn't eat up system resources. I'm still trying to find a >permanent solution.
>
>Another potential problem in Windows XP is right clicking on items in >the task bar (such as when you want to quickly close programs). Not >supposed to do that. Supposed to left click first then right click.
>
>I have some bad habits to break Someone slap my hand if you see me do a >right click before a left click.

Re: Click, click

sci.med.transcription: Re: Click, click

>

>Barb.

>

>

>

>

~~~~~*****~~~~~*****~~~~~*****

To send me e-mail, use juliew8@deletethis-alphabest.com