

Re: hurricane

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.med.transcription/2004-09/2900.html>

From: YvonneVT (yvonnevt_at_aol.com)

Date: 09/11/04

Date: 11 Sep 2004 20:43:04 GMT

> They tell you not to keep them in >the barn, but to put them in pasture.

One of my daughter's friends has used nail polish to put her phone number on her horse's coat in the event that the horse gets lost when Ivan comes.

No, shelters don't take pets. We have to evacuate tomorrow (Charlotte County) and will have to take kitty with us. We will head toward Miami as we have a friend there. I don't know if his complex allows pets; I forgot to ask him. But even if not, we will have to smuggle her in. I know some people leave the animals at home to fare the best they can, but it seems impossible to do that.

We are still hoping we see that cone go further and further west. Like you, I feel terrible that it would mean someone else endures the misery, but this area has had too much. Too much!

Yvonne