

Re: Voter Information Guide

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.med.transcription/2004-09/4147.html>

From: Jeannie H Wilson (jeanniehwilson_at_aol.com)

Date: 09/26/04

Date: 26 Sep 2004 18:56:04 GMT

>At what age can a child be trusted to >understand completely and to understand he is not to believe any adult, >especially one who he is not certain understands the ramifications.

For my son, it has been since he was 3 years old. He has been told to check labels or have a grown-up check a label and when in doubt- just don't eat it. Adults make mistakes. Not all adults read labels. If there is no label for him to read (he was taught to check food labels by sight reading before he could actually read) then he doesn't eat it. Plain and simple. Sure there will be times when he will but I certainly wouldn't go around with frivolous lawsuits. Now...if some teacher or cafeteria worker held him down while cramming food he was allergic to in his mouth and held his nose so he had no choice but to swallow to get air, then that would be another story. Yes, allergies are a terrible thing. We suffer from them every day. We live with them every day. We make adjustments every single day. I don't expect the world to stop spinning because we are allergic to certain things.