

On topic – great software for an MT

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.med.transcription/2004-10/0533.html>

From: 14tonks (mail.2.14tonks_at_recurator.net)

Date: 10/03/04

Date: Sun, 3 Oct 2004 03:44:03 -0400

Some of you many know that I'm hanging out a lot these days over at Harrie's Productivity Talk, which I think is a great board. (Disclaimer: I'm currently a moderator there. However, I'm not saying it's a great board because I'm a moderator, I accepted the invitation to be a moderator because I thought it was a great board.)

Anyway, this past week the management there all downloaded a program called ActiveWords, and we have been evaluating it for use in our work. We think it's such a terrific program that we created a new forum on for it on Productivity Talk the day after the first download. I just posted an initial review, along with a link to a free 60-day trial download with a 20% discount offer on the already modest $49.95 purchase price for the individual version, which can be installed on up to 3 computers per license.

If anyone is interested, here's the link to the review in the new forum in both full and tiny URL forms:

<http://www.productivitytalk.com/forums/index.php?act=ST&f=29&t=721&st=0#entry618700>

<http://tinyurl.com/4fvax>

Download ActiveWords, try it out, and see if you don't agree that typing line command and control of your whole computer is a fantastic time saver. You can post to Productivity Talk's ActiveWords forum or to ActiveWords' own forums for assistance with its various features, including scripting your command shorts.

--

Sheila

To reply to me, add the prefix real. to my address.