To be quite honest, I think it is very selfish of this woman to "fulfil her life long dream" to be a mother at this age. What about these kids...they'll be taking care of her when they are only teenagers. I don't even know if there is a father in the picture and I'm not being sexist about it either. If there were a 30 year-old husband in the picture to take care of these kids I would look at it differently. I know it's not unusual for men to have kids in their late 50s but they usually have young wives in their 30s who at least will be around to care for the kids. I'd like to see an interview with this woman in 3 years and then again in about 10 to see what really happens.
