((If I could do 15 minutes a day, every day, I wouldn't get into this fix!))

If you can figure out how to do this, Gisele, please let me know. I just forget to do things at the right time.

Yesterday I put three eggs in a pan to hard boil them. As I was working at my computer, there was the sound of a crash. I didn't think anything of it since my cats are constantly knocking things over.

When I returned to the kitchen quite a bit later, I found two eggs stuck to the bottom of the dried out pan and the third had actually exploded hitting the bottom of my kitchen cabinet and smashing down all over the counter; this had caused the crashing sound. I can NOT recommend the smell of burnt eggs, by the way.

Some day I will learn to follow the often repeated instruction of one of last year's therapists, which was CONCENTRATE!!
