

Re: Treadmill recommendations, anyone?

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.med.transcription/2005-03/1664.html>

---

From: djgordon (danigordon_at_bellsouth.net)

Date: 03/22/05

Date: Tue, 22 Mar 2005 11:34:52 -0600

We paid $194 for our Weslo Cadence 200(I think it may be a CL model) from Wal Mart and it's quiet, works well, has a minimum of bells and whistles (LED showing MPH, calories burned, fat calories burned, time,e tc.), and a cupholder, oh yeah and a safety key in case you fall off.

Dani

"CindyB" <cinqueen@yahoo.com> wrote in message news:ofh041dnl0iffg8mju864a76j729hb7otp@4ax.com...

- > We're looking to buy a treadmill but don't need or want anything
- > fancy. We're walkers, not runners. We want something as quiet as
- > possible, easy to use and able to handle "plus-size" people without
- > difficulty. Inexpensive would be good too <G>.
- >
- > Does anyone have experience with a treadmill that might fit our needs?
- > Everything I see is state of the art with all kinds of bells and
- > whistles and a price tag to match. For us, it's overkill.
- >
- > Thanks in advance.