Well, I just had to share this even though it's just a silly little thing. I don't know if any of you watch the show, Medium, on NBC Monday nights or know the story of Allison DuBois, but I'm a pretty firm believer that there are those of us who can feel the energy left behind by the people who have come before us. Anyway, Allison is psychic but only in the sense that she knows the things that the dead can tell her. Anyway, I was at her Website and saw a typo "a intern" instead of "an intern". And while there was no way to contact anyone from her Web page I went to whois.net and saw that her husband is the one who owns the page and his email address on it. So I wrote him and told him of the typo (there are a few others, but that one is the one that stands out horribly to me) and also told him (half jokingly I guess) to tell Allison if she ever talks to a little boy named Justin Gordon to tell him how much we miss him and hope he is whole now. He wrote me back within an hour and thanked me for the correction and then told me he would tell Allison about Justin and that he already knows what she would tell me: to talk to Justin every day because he's right here with me. I know that's just something that anyone would tell you, but it was just one of those things that even faithless heathen that I am that helps me cope sometimes.
