

Re: Male reasoning (sorry Ed, Neal)

Source: <http://sci.tech--archive.net/Archive/sci.med.transcription/2005-05/msg00198.html>

- From: "Susan Mitchell" <medlawtrans@xxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Wed, 4 May 2005 22:14:42 -0700
-

My DH NEVER, NEVER cleans up cat puke. If I'm not here I am advised where the present is when I get home. The reason? There will be a larger pile from him to clean up. He has the shortest puke cord known to man. If he hears it he runs and starts gagging. He's what's commonly called a courtesy puker. You puke and he will too!

I do have to tell a funny story. I cleaned some up at the bottom of the stairs one day and of course it was still a tad damp. He was rough housing with the cousins that were over and yes they get rough when footballs are involved and he went down the stairs on his back and the side of his face went by the damp spot and he almost lost it. Knowing full well it was clean but just knowing what was there before dang near gagged him. Like I said very short puke cord!!

Me nothing gets to me but grown up feet. Love baby feet, and little kid's feet. Can't stand grown up feet. Yuk!

—
Sue -- Firefighter mom -- Still Rabid UW Dawg Fan!
(to reply send to medlawtrans@xxxxxxxxxxxx)
"Tallulah" <tallulahbankrupt@xxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message news:1115265434.631148.201470@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx > I'm still wondering how this turned into my fault. My husband was > sitting at the computer across the room, and the cat was lying on the > table right next to him. She started making the "I'm going to puke" > noises, so he grabs her and takes off towards the utility room, which > is a concrete floor (family room has carpet). As he passes by, I > mention "so it's better to spew chunks for a long trail rather than > just one spot?" and about that time, of course she does start puking – > as he's running. Now this is a good 15 feet from the door of the > utility room, and he had to turn a small corner to get there, yet he is > blaming me for the 15-foot long chunk trail because I had left the > vacuum in the doorway of the utility room.
>
> It's obvious he didn't make it in time, as he had just started turning > the corner when the cat started blowing chunks. But the vacuum cleaner > he couldn't even see when she started doing that is the reason he > didn't make it...so it's my fault.
>

Re: Male reasoning (sorry Ed, Neal)

- > And then...while trying to clean up the trail, he starts RUBBING it IN
- > the carpet. Like that's going to make it CLEAN? So I wound up cleaning
- > it up – actually that was a stroke of genius on his part, as he didn't
- > have to.
- >
- > Apparently Common Sense 101 was an elective course...
- >
- > I'm at the point where I don't know what to do about his stunts. Not
- > speaking doesn't seem to have the impact it had when we were younger.
- > <G> Eyerolling is ignored. Other than going on a shopping trip with
- > the credit card, I'm about out of ideas. <BG>
- >

• Follow-Ups:

- ◆ Re: Male reasoning \(sorry Ed, Neal\)
 ◇ From: kathycarp
- ◆ Re: Male reasoning \(sorry Ed, Neal\)
 ◇ From: Maureen Galvin

• References:

- ◆ Male reasoning \(sorry Ed, Neal\)
 ◇ From: Tallulah

- Prev by Date: Re: Male reasoning \(sorry Ed, Neal\)
- Next by Date: Re: Male reasoning \(sorry Ed, Neal\)
- Previous by thread: Re: Male reasoning \(sorry Ed, Neal\)
- Next by thread: Re: Male reasoning \(sorry Ed, Neal\)
- Index(es):
 - ◆ Date
 - ◆ Thread