

Doc always seems to be on vacation on previously proposed paydays

---

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.med.transcription/2005-07/msg01401.html>

---

- From: "Carol A" <carolonline@xxxxxxxx>
  - Date: Mon, 11 Jul 2005 21:30:47 GMT
-

He originally told me I would be paid on the 1st and 15th of every month, same as his office employees, but he is always in Chicago lecturing the first week of every month, and, gee, this month he's going to be gone next week, too. I'm beginning to wonder about the lack of "coincidence" this seems to have....

Now, with the trouble surrounding the arrival of my last paycheck, his office manager informed me that their office will have an accountant on staff by next pay period, which will mean regular interval of paychecks from now on, starting with the next one.

....But, if Doc isn't there to sign the checks, how is this possible?

Thanks for any help/info/advice.

—

Carol A. Addison
Internet-ready Medical Transcriptionist
carolmedtx@xxxxxxxx
Specialties:
Orthopaedics, Gastroenterology, Operative Reports, Urgent Care/Emergency Room

-
- Follow-Ups:
    - ◆ Re: Doc always seems to be on vacation on previously proposed paydays
    ◇ From: Gisele
    - ◆ Re: Doc always seems to be on vacation on previously proposed paydays
    ◇ From: kathycarp
    - ◆ Re: Doc always seems to be on vacation on previously proposed paydays
    ◇ From: DJGordon
    - ◆ Re: Doc always seems to be on vacation on previously proposed paydays

Doc always seems to be on vacation on previously proposed paydays

◇ From: Sandi

- Prev by Date: Re: Technical question about a KVM switch
- Next by Date: Per line rate
- Previous by thread: New subject line, same thread – Presidential IQs
- Next by thread: Re: Doc always seems to be on vacation on previously proposed paydays
- Index(es):
  - ◆ Date
  - ◆ Thread