I had one that I never could get it to work right. It was a setting but somehow I never could do anything else other than pick up the phone and say hello and then hit fax.

I decided if I really needed to fax anymore it would be by eFax. That is simpler to me as I can get the document in the computer via my scanner/PDF etc and then just fax it to where it needs to go or just email depending on what it is. If in PDF format, it makes a perfect copy so basically I just attach the PDFs to email and they get where they need to go.

They are not that much money and they sure are better than most faxes are as far as quality
