They do not have an exclusive working relationship with our company and are free to work for other clients; they set their own working hours and working conditions; they are not required to meet certain quotas in terms of volume or time; they provide their own equipment; they do not work on premises owned by our company or use any equipment or software that is owned by our company; they are responsible for all expenses related to the work they do for our company; they are not guaranteed a profit from their relationship with our company; they cannot be fired.

This is obviously a big concern so we have spent quite a bit of time researching the IRS guidelines and structuring our operation accordingly.
