I was just telling someone on another forum that this is one of the things I love best about sci.med. You can never trust a thread title to tell you what kernels of wisdom are held within! LOL!

That is, of course, true of most Usenet newsgroups these days, and has been for roughly a decade or so.

Which is **exactly** why using the google search engine to spot articles of interest is productive; but did you notice how some people resent that. It is an amusing bit of psychology...
