I need to set up my office with digital recorders, and I want something very simple. I've used Sony before, but they require some sort of action on the sending end. (After the recorder is plugged into the PC, the sender has to click on the Sony icon.) I am wondering if there is a recorder that automatically downloads the dictation from the recorder to the PC with absolutely NO required action from the sender (other than docking, of course). If not, how do other recorders measure up?

Thanks for any and all input.
