If anyone is interested, my son has his own business in Colorado where he does this type of thing for clients, and also sets up and maintains web sites. He is well-qualified with a degree in electrical engineering, major in computers, and with several specialized certificates. I'm lucky. When a lightning storm fried my server I just shipped it back

I may be interested some time here in the future starting a website for other thing(s) than MT. Send me his info. via e-mail and I'll save it for when I need it.
