

Re: Microburst

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.med.transcription/2006-02/msg01774.html>

- From: "Bambi C." <blcc324@xxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Sun, 19 Feb 2006 17:59:01 GMT
-

Wow, it sounds like you almost had a tornado! I hope the tree just landed ON your roof and not IN it.

We had tremendous winds on Friday, and there were a few times I was afraid my roof would lift off. The wind here was so strong that it opened the glass doors on my fireplace about an inch, even though the damper was closed! My poor dog, who weighs about 15 pounds, had a terrible time trying to balance on 3 legs to do his business, and I was half afraid he would get blown away.

Bambi C.

"Romy" <Romy.23gd8i@xxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message
<news:Romy.23gd8i@xxxxxxxxxxxx>

We had an unbelievable concentration of winds of concentric circles up here, very unusual for this area. My next door neighbor's tree fell on our roof, and many trees were downed. That was followed by several inches of snow so it's hard to remove the downed trees. I heard that Syracuse lost power in major areas, but we were okay. The computers went totally wacky though I've never seen such bizarreness, I just shut down. Today they're fine. Fortunately we had the presence of mind to go take a roll of pictures of the damage, (good thing we did before the snow came) and we were advised also to put in a police report for not only the damage but the neglect issue (we've been asking the guy to get rid of the trees). Tough day yesterday in Upstate.

--

Romy