

Re: OT: Now you've done it

Re: OT: Now you've done it

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.med.transcription/2006-03/msg01200.html>

- From: "Kathycarp" <kathycarp@xxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Sat, 11 Mar 2006 19:25:20 -0800
-

Oh man, that was confusing. So many to choose from! And no prices are posted. Is there a way to find the price? We don't have a Sam's Club in Oregon, just Costco, and I can't find it on their website – just the accessories.

--

Kathy

www.ambergriscaye.com/villadelosol

"Jeannie Wilson" <jwilson421@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message
<news:Xns9783CDC35B7F0jwilson421comcastnet@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>

Link to Sam's club online: There's one close to me if you don't have one close to you. i'd be happy to do the pickup and shipping to you if they don't offer delivery on the item you want

<http://www.samsclub.com/shopping/search.do?searchtype=simple&catg=1&simplesearchfor=IPOD&simpleitemtype=0>

Jeannie Wilson <jwilson421@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote here for all to see <news:Xns9783CC3CAC6E7jwilson421comcastnet@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>:

"Kathycarp" <kathycarp@xxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote here for all to see news:n4udnTl_qPWExY7ZRvn-pQ@xxxxxxxxxxxxxx:

With all this talk about Ipod, I want one. But I also want the little speakers so I can play it out loud. I've been wanting to replace the little "boom box" player I have in my office, and this might do as a replacement.

Where is the best place to buy an Ipod? (having not paid attention, I haven't seen them anywhere) Does anyone have experience with the speakers? Do they sound good? I did see the speakers at Costco, but not the Ipod.

Re: OT: Now you've done it

You should look at Sam's or Costco – and check online. They are sometimes available online but not in the store closest to you. I bought mine at Sam's in a bundle pack and got the FM Transmitter so you can play it through your FM radio (of course, I have since found that the cassette adapter is MUCH BETTER if your car has a cassette player (and cheaper too), and two other things, which both escape me right now. I use an IGo charger for my cell phone (you can switch out tips and they are only about 10 bucks per tip so that keeps you from having to have a gazillion charges) and I just bought an adapter for my Ipod so it charges right there (oh, yeah, because I broke my car charger for my Ipod). I went to Sam's and bought the I-Boom, which you just plug your Ipod into and you can play all the songs on it. It has a canvas heavy-duty case too for the whole boom-box and I absolutely LOVE mine. They also sell smaller docking stations with speakers for countertop/desktop use and those little speakers sound GOOD. The Bose ones sound great but I haven't bought those yet since I have the I-Boom and cannot justify the extra expense to myself when there are so many new Vera Bradley things I want this spring (LOL).