Waving my hand-- I have a bunch of stuff I ordered, put in the garage because it was so rainy, and then forgot. Then I discovered another box I didn't know the mail lady had delivered THREE WEEKS AGO. All the stuff was still great! LOL! I think anything I get grows IN SPITE of me, not because of anything talented or wonderful I do to it! LOL!

I'm not Liz, but absolutely plant it now. It will be very happy to be in the ground. LOL

I absolutely abused a bare root rose bush I got once, not planting for weeks, and it is doing great. I was sure it would be dead.

I received my order probably a month ago and haven't had a chance to plant

it. It's in an oblong box about 6 feet long and about 1 foot square. It got leaned against the wall in my bedroom for safekeeping (to keep it away

from the 3-year-old who wanted to bounce on it).

Along about Thursday last week I figured it must be dead.

On Friday I found that it had decided its box was just too much and it now growing out of one tiny corner of the box and reaching for the ceiling.

Liz, is this enough abuse? Can I be nice to it now and it'll still grow?
