

BCP question

---

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.med.transcription/2006-05/msg01218.html>

---

- From: Margie <nomoremargiesjunk@xxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
  - Date: Thu, 11 May 2006 01:12:24 GMT
-

While I'm waiting for a return call from my gyn, thought I'd post my question here. My BCPs list a warning to "tell your physician if you are going to be taking any long plane trips." Well, since I'll be flying San Francisco-Atlanta (5 hours) and then Atlanta-Milan (8 hours or so), I figured this qualifies as a long trip. It doesn't say anything about what to do about it; just say to notify your doc. Anybody with gyn knowledge have any ideas about the risks? (I know about drinking lots of water, getting up and moving around, etc., but wondering if there's anything else I should know.) Thanks.

Margie

.