DH read Angels & Demons and he kept saying, "you HAVE to read this one!" I haven't yet, but I will. He really liked it.

Really? I thought Angels & Demons was by far his best book!

This one is pretty good. It's the only one other than the DaVinci Code that was okay. The other two books by him I thought were pretty bad. This one is no DaVinci Code, but its entertaining. I think maybe he should rest on his laurels. He'd have to go some to beat that.

If you like Dan Brown, try "Digital Fortress" It was a quick read, a mystery, lots of NSA information (pertinent now since the NSA has been 'listening' to our phone calls and reading our emails.

I'm one of those people who really only reads while on vacation. I'm looking for a book to take to Italy --- but strictly for reading on the plane. My criteria: Fiction, not too heavy subject matter, page-turner that grabs you on page 1 and doesn't let go, and nothing over 300 pages or so. (My friend and I are gonna swap books, so I need something I can read from start to finish pretty quickly.) I loved Da Vinci Code (strictly as a mystery novel) and that would be an example of the kind of engrossing plot I like. I've read all the Patricia Cornwells and not much else (such as Janet Evanovich, Kellerman, etc.). How 'bout it, you readers? Otherwise, I'm gonna go to Barnes & Noble this afternoon and pick the brains of the people who work there.
